

Key insights regarding the 2024 General Elections:

1.BJP Domination: The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) retains a significant number of seats, thus reaffirming its grasp on Indian politics.

2.Congress Performance: The Indian National Congress (INC) has done better than in previous elections and won many seats to stay as the main opposition party.

3.Regional Parties' Influence: Regional parties like Telugu Desam Party (TDP) from Andhra Pradesh or Biju Janata Dal (BJD) from Odisha have remained strong in their states thereby playing a crucial role in the politics of these places.

4.New Entrants: Parties such as Voice of the People Party (VOTPP) or Zoram People's Movement (ZPM) have marked themselves by winning seats thus implying that voters are moving towards new political entities.

5.Independent Candidates: Independent candidates have secured several seats indicating that some constituencies prefer individual candidates rather than parties.

6.Low Performing Parties: Few smaller parties including Communist Party of India (CPI), Rashtriya Lok Dal (RLD), were able to secure only some few numbers of seats,

7.Notable Wins in Jammu and Kashmir: In constituencies like Baramulla, candidates from Jammu & Kashmir National Conference (JKNC) and independent candidates received significant votes, indicating a competitive political environment in the region.

8.Electoral Participation: The voter turnout and the number of votes counted reflect a high level of electoral participation, demonstrating a robust democratic engagement among the populace.

9.Margin of Victory: In many constituencies, the margin of victory between the leading candidates was substantial, showing clear voter preferences and decisive outcomes in those areas.

10.State-Wise Trends: The election results show distinct state-wise trends, with different parties dominating in different regions, underlining the diverse political landscape of India.
